High School Job Goes To Geyer For $116,280

Further Bond Issue Delayed; WPA Aid Urged

It's a high ball and two short toots for the iron horse that's been waiting in the high school yard for more than a year and a half!

Steam's up and a clear line lies ahead!

For this week the contract for constructing the first essentials was awarded to H. C. Geyer of Monterey, whose bid with certain alternates considered was low with a figure of $116,280.

Obtaining indispensable buildings at this cost will permit the construction of all primary necessities for the high school, including sewers and water main and installation of public address system, the last more conveniently put in at this time because of concealed wiring.

The foods room was dropped and a change made in specifications from birch to pine wainscoting, which effected a substantial saving on the primary bid of around $124,000 to provide a contingency fund of several thousand dollars.

Four buildings containing administration and class rooms are planned at present.

Altogether five bids were closely grouped within a thousand dollars of the same figures in the revised line-up of bids. The board simply dropped what it had to drop and added what was considered best to add and then went through the ozen bids to select Geyer's figure.

The low group of bids were: Geyer, $116,280; S. C. Giles of Stockton, $116,388; R. W. Brown Construction Company of Madera, $116,400; F. C. Stolte Company of Pacific Grove, $116,930; Trewitt - Shields - Fisher, $117,231; Nielsen and Erbentraut, $117,950.

The contract was awarded on Tuesday afternoon, but on last Friday evening the Carmel Unified School Board and representative citizens at an open meeting discussed advisability of a bond issue to complete the school. Problems confronting the board in building the high school were thoroughly talked over with public and board in a harmonious mood.

There was very little of the heckling which was apparent at a previous meeting of this nature last year.

It was the consensus that the board should delay asking for a bond election until "something concrete" in the way of a high school was to be seen. It was reported that the chances of WPA aid were excellent at this time, while Post Master Ernest Bixler suggested the possibility of a $500,000,000 PWA appropriation.

The decision was not to wait for WPA or PWA aid, but to get to work immediately and with the signing of the contract with Geyer it will

PATTERSON'S CHOP HOUSE TO HAVE NEW HOME

Steve Patterson's Chop House, almost a historic landmark on the corner of San Carlos and Sixth, is soon to have a new home—elsewhere. Just now Patterson, who has been in business in Carmel for seven years, declines to say where the Chop House will be, but he says that the property owner who is to accommodate him will build him a new restaurant.

Before coming to Carmel, Patterson operated the Star Grille in San Jose for 16 years—and it was there that he used to serve Allen Griffin, when the present publisher of the Monterey Herald was a reporter for the San Jose Mercury Herald and E. K. Johnson, when the father of Carmel's Janie Otto was its great managing editor.

Before Patterson came to reign over the Chop House, there were many operators, among them Carl Harris, Mrs. Frates, Mrs. Scott and others. It had its origin behind Stanford's Drug Store when it was still operated by the late Dr. J. E. Beck, and the present building was once a pool room run by Jack Shaw.

Regarding one phase of his plans, Patterson is eloquent. "I'm going to start to plant a garden around the new Chop House just as quickly as possible. This is Carmel and to succeed in business you've got to make things attractive!"

Thus spake Mr. Patterson, who is a very smart business man and one who has been solvent a trying seven years!

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBIT

An unusual exhibition of photographs are those to be seen on Dolores street, work of Leota Tucker's pupils in her Adult Education class.

Miss Mary Jungblut, assistant to Mrs. Miriam Watson, gymnasium teacher, conducts a tumbling class after school from 3:30 to 4:30 in the gym every Wednesday.

Miss Jungblut started teaching here only a few months ago. The large attendance at this voluntary class indicates her ability to interest and teach students.

Members of this class are as follows: Rose and Met Gossler, Phoebe Merchant, Betty Bucklen, Juanita Baca, Barbara McReynolds, and Phyllis Jones. All girl students may join this class.

—Frances Passallaigue.

Girls' Basketball Captains Are Named

PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB FLASHES

On Tuesday the members of the Photography Club went down to the school darkroom to see Mrs. Leota Tucker demonstrate the process of printing pictures. She showed them the different types of lamps she uses, and the paper, pans, and trays, and demonstrated the proper way to open a printing frame. She told the group which side of the paper was the film side. Then after adjusting the lights, she actually printed several pictures. One of the boys in the group tried his luck at printing one of his own pictures.

Mrs. Tucker showed the group different types of imperfections in films. She printed a picture that she had made, and that was going to be used on a postcard.

When it was time for leaving, the class filed out, feeling that they had spent their morning learning something really worthwhile.

—Suzanne Watson.

MISSION HAS SODALITY CLUB

The Sodality, organized by the young people of the Carmel Mission, received Holy Communion in a body, followed by breakfast, at the Mission Ranch Club last Sunday morning. The chaplain of the Sodality is Father Eugene McDonald.

After breakfast candidates were nominated for the following offices: president, Patty Lou Elliott and Dick Williams; secretary-treasurer, Meta Gossler and Frances Passallaigue. In the election, Dick Williams and Frances Passallaigue were elected.

The Sodality has been named the Serra Sodality Club and will meet after 8 o'clock mass the third Sunday of each month.

—Frances Passallaigue.

ELECT MARGERY STREET

Mrs. Phyllis Walker's ninth grade held an election for new class officers last Friday. After the election Peggy Gargiulo turned her office as president over to Margery Street; Kenneth Jones took over Donald Stanford's vice presidency; and Martina Tait's office of secretary will be held by Cornelia Shuman.

—Cornelia Shuman.

Ruth Draper Has Few Props, a la Shakespearean

Ruth Draper's consummate art will be seen at Sunset auditorium on the evening of Monday, Feb. 19, when she will present her famed character sketches at Sunset auditorium. She will be sponsored by Kit Whitman.

Miss Draper is truly an international star, having played everywhere except South America, which she plans to visit next year. Her art bears an interesting resemblance in one way to the theater of the Elizabethan era in that she gives her performances without the aid of scenery and with very little in the way of special costuming. A few hats, a half dozen shawls, a lorgnette, and a few other accessories are amply sufficient to bring to life the characters she wishes to create.

Carmel Gardener Hurt as Automatic Pistol Fired Accidentally

George F. Ingram, 24-year-old Carmel gardener residing on Torres near Third, was treated at the Peninsula Community Hospital for a gunshot wound on the right forehead last week-end.

The shot was from a small automatic pistol which Ingram, according to the police account, asked his wife, Margaret, to hand to him. He said he had planned to sell the pistol. A first shot struck a curtain and as Ingram reached for the pistol, the second shot struck him, according to the report.

After questioning by police, the wife was released.

Hearing Likely as City Protests Liquor Licenses

A hearing is likely on the Carmel Hotel application for a license to sell beer, wine and liquor, asked by the Gates-Phillips Hotel Corporation which is building the new hotel on Vendordorf Plaza.

The city council on Wednesday evening registered an official protest to be sent to the State Board of Equalization and a hearing will follow to be held in Carmel at the convenience of Administrator George Reilly. The license on which the hotel is asking for right to operate in Carmel was purchased from the American Legion in Monterey.

At the same time the council turned down the request of Percy Parkes on the technical basis of the zoning ordinance his request for permission to sell beer and wine at his new business building on Dolores street, near Eighth.

Councilman Clara Kellogg said: "There is no proper place in Carmel for any more places selling liquor."

Mayor Herbert Heron said: "This town was a place to escape from those things. Business will make a lot more money if the town is not overrun with liquor."

Councilman Hazel Watrous showed a lively interest in the proceedings.

"I don't think most people want this to be a dry town, but they do want it under control," was Councilman Everett Smith's contribution.

SOME NOTES ON— "Julius Caesar"

—IN REHEARSAL

By UNA JEFFERS

Rehearsals are usually disillusioning. I went reluctantly a few nights ago and found excitement and reality. This production of "Julius Caesar" is announced as a drastically cult version in a modernized setting, not only dressed in contemporary fashion, but within the sound of droning airplanes and machine-gun fire. The theme, Dictatorship versus Democracy, is the concern of our very day, and "Julius Caesar" might have been having its first production, so immediate and actual were the emotions of the crowd as I watched their movements in the Roman market-place. Tribunes, citizens and generals intrigued and argued, groups formed and shifted; there was a premonition of mob violence in the air.

"Beware the Ides of March!"—fateful words to shake the heart, as Caesar entered and the crowd gave way before him. Noel Sullivan has well caught that aloof, patrician bearing, mild yet arrogant, and over against him stood Herbert Heron portraying Brutus, long his friend, that just man led by patriotism, reluctant but determined. John Eaton has a great part as Mark Antony. His oration over dead Caesar was impassioned and convincing. André French is getting a good grip on the characterization of Cassius. French recently did a memorable bit of acting in "The Good Hope."

There are many good small parts in this play. The wives of Caesar and Brutus appear briefly, but long enough for Edith Frisbie and Theodora Winter to depict them vividly and distinctly, each in her wifely solicitude and tenderness. Of course I watched Donnan Jeffers closely, first as Marullus, later as Titinius, and thought his unhappily war-canceled admittance to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London was firing his passionate utterance. Quite evidently all the actors were interested in their parts under Chick McCarthy's vital directing. He was endlessly resourceful, giving forth lines, cues, gestures, emotions at need and very patient when the reception was bad.

I questioned Herbert Heron about his long connection with the drama. Before coming to Carmel, he played for several years with stock companies in Los Angeles—notably the rival Morasco and Belasco companies. In Carmel he has appeared in 55 different plays, 12 of them Shakespeare. At moments when not playing, he has read Shakespeare with varying groups. Right now he is turning over in his mind plans for Shakespeare performances in Carmel's newly renovated Forest Theater.

"Well," I said to myself, "there are many ways of doing Shakespeare plays, cut, uncut, and streamlined—in Elizabethan dress and in stylized garb. Each way has its own special quality. At this particular moment I am voting for the Modernized Version of "Julius Caesar!"

FIREMEN'S AUXILIARY MEETS

Members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department met last Friday for their monthly meeting, when two new members, Mrs. Irving Foster and Mrs. Cedric Rowntree, were introduced. Mrs. Fred Mylar served refreshments.

Thomas Morgan, Artist's Brother, Succumbs at 64

Thomas Wolfe Morgan, Jr., school chum of such figures in the literary and journalist world of fame as Jack London, Robert Welles Ritchie, and James Hopper, and Adolph Cheek, who now lives in Carmel, died on Monday of a heart attack in hospital at Salinas. He had been ill with pleurisy for two months.

Born in Oakland 64 years ago, he came to Carmel in 1920 to join his sister, Miss M. De Neale Morgan, well known pioneer artist of Carmel.

Always active, in spite of being crippled in boyhood, he studied metallurgy with his father and, skilled as an architectural draughtsman, made the plans for the Carmel post office on Dolores street, where it remained from 1922 until 1934. At this time the property went out of the hands of the Morgan family.

He was a great student, a lover of books, art and music, and was an accomplished flautist. He had many anecdotes of Jack London, whom he knew well in Oakland.

The son of Thomas Wolfe Morgan and Christina Ross Morgan, who came to Monterey in 1856, his father was city engineer of Oakland for 21 years.

Surviving are his two sisters, Miss Morgan and Jeanie Klenke of Carmel and two nephews, Dana R. Morgan, Jr., and Andrew James Morgan, sons of the late Dana R. Morgan, who died 15 years ago almost to the day. Two other brothers, now dead, were Ross, whose widow, Mrs. Charlotte Morgan, lives in Carmel, and James Morgan. These three brothers were engineers.

HAVE YOU ANY Old Pictures

The time is getting short. Our anniversary edition will be published on February 23rd, and we can still use a few more old photographs of Carmel.

This issue is to be devoted to a history of Carmel. We'd like to have as many old-timers represented as we can, both by pictures and stories. Dig around in the attic, of your house and your memory. You'll probably be surprised at the treasures you'll turn up.

We won't be able to accept any material after February 16th, which is next Friday, so be sure that you get in your contributions by then. We'll appreciate it.

As if juries weren't unlucky enough already, there's a movement afoot to add a 13th juror in civil cases so as to provide an alternate.

The railroads may rail about competition on the highways and it's high time they did something about it—for the convenience of the purchaser of railroad services.

Comes pious announcement of train-auto service "consolidating the high speed of the modern railroad train with the mobility of the private automobile."

Apparently the railroads, so long dependent upon public solicitude and the necessity of public aid because of the large holding of railroad stocks by insurance companies, have decided the automobile "is here to stay."

Incidentally, as already pointed out recently by a fact-cartoon, the railroads operate more trucks than locomotives.

Happy thought at this time of year: If you haven't enough income to get by, you don't have to pay any income tax like those rich birds on the gold coast; if you have to pay an income tax, you can probably afford it better than the guy up on Tortilla Flat who can't afford Bobbie's new shoes just yet.

Pacific Grove has gone wet these days, but it's only the rain—and the liquor bought in New Monterey.

A German radio station uses a sure-fire method of getting its propaganda into England, Walter Winchell points out, by giving a few names each day of survivors of captured vessels.

As Winchell also points out in his "Debunking the War News", the English were the first to use this method months ago.

Now they're in a rage at the German station.

Well, all's fair in love and war, as they say.

That's all right about French soldiers getting "paternity leave" in order to keep the French birthrate from declining, but how about American soldiers if we get in the war?

A Filipino butler, testifying in a sordid New York divorce case involving an heiress:

"Oh yes, I remember the date well. It was March 17th, a big day in my religion—St. Patrick's Day!"

The national chief of the American Legion made a fine speech in New York the other day. He minced no words about the Legion's Americanization program, nor about the Legion's stand on labor-employer relations.

In Commander Kelly's words, the platform was commendable in its broadness. There was no pettiness of spirit there.

And his deprecation of -isms in their assault on the American Way must have appealed to the radio broadcast's wide audience.

So must his appeal for America's remaining at peace.

It is to be hoped that the spirit of his address will be kept.

If anyone wanted to make public what graft and corruption there may be during preparations for war, it was Dr. Robert J. Manion, leader of the opposition in the Canadian Government.

And if there was anyone who had his mouth padlocked, it was Dr. Manion, when Premier King called for a war-time national election.

"Dictatorship!" shouted Dr. Manion. Well, we'll soon see!

I just been reading some funny kind of news. It is news about the Govt. buying 100 thousand tons of coal down in Tennessee, to use for making electric power by steam.

Brother they have got me. I been harboring the idea all the time that everything Uncle Sambo was doing on the rivers, it was just to help navigation, and make a little electricity as a side issue, to use up the surplus water. This coal buying makes me look kinda simple. But I guess I got company.

And talking about feeling small or simple, it is like the young bride who asked the butcher for some mincemeat. And cut it, she says, from a nice young and tender mince.

But being a simple and inexperienced bride and making a faux pas, it is not so bad, but being an old spavin and voting for years—and still being simple—you don't feel so proud.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA.

ON WAY SOUTH

Miss Ruth Taft, who was a guest director with the Carmel Players a little over a year ago, stopped in Carmel overnight on Saturday on her way south to Los Angeles.

PEOPLE

TALKED ABOUT

William Harbison, Esq., Diesel engineer of Ogden, Utah, in 1937 made a bet with a friend and it changed his whole life. Now he's Brahma Bill and he works the rodeos.

Bill bet that he could ride a Brahma bull down the main street of Ogden. The bet was for $100, and the bull cost $65. The net profit on the deal was $35, for Bill won. Since then he's been riding the same bull, "Buster", all over the West.

Bill blew into Carmel around midnight last Saturday from Arizona. He and the bull, with a goat who's learning tricks, too; put up at Smoky's Corral in the Aquajito. They're getting ready for the 1940 shows.

Bill is a blonde young fellow; may be around 40, more likely less. Buster is black, six years old and weighs 1350 pounds. He can jump over a car, through a burning hoop and act out "The Tragedy of the Range", which has to do with a cowboy and his horse both being shot, trying to help each other home and finally dying together. Bill plays the cowboy and Buster the horse.

Buster never did any acting before Bill got hold of him. He was just natural, an onery bucking Brahma bull in rodeos. Bill, though, was training animals for a hobby before he and Buster cast their lots together. Bill tamed mountain lions, wildcats, skunks and all such. He tried an act with Buster and a mountain lion. But, in his own words, "There's only one thing sulkier than a Brahma bull and that's a mountain lion."

The act didn't work out. But Buster and Bill have gotten along famously. They plan to appear at Salinas this year and at El Paso, Houston, Guthrie, Oklahoma and points between. They'll be visiting Smoky for a couple of weeks. Then they'll be moving on. Buster travels in a trailer behind Bill's car. It's the same car over which Buster does his jumping and it hasn't any dents in the top.

A pleasant visitor to The Pine Cone Office this week was Mrs. Rozeltha H. Greeley, a real Carmel Old Timer. She came in 1903, joined in the Forest Theater activities when they began, and otherwise became an important figure in the community. This is a pre-view of the 25th anniversary number of The Pine Cone, but a one which can be considered separate from this. Mrs. Greeley used to sew most of the costumes for the annual children's plays at the Forest Theater, including the well remembered first "Alice in Wonderland" with Alice MacDougal in the name part.

Besides this, Mrs. Greeley typed most of Harry Leon Wilson's manuscripts, beginning when he was finishing "Ruggles", and today she gets a thrill when she goes to see "Ruggles" of the screen. She also typed "Merton of the Movies", many of the Man Pettingill stories and "Oh, Doctor!" among others.

She recalls that Harry Leon Wilson usually failed to greet her on the street, because of his abstraction of mind, but that the last time she saw this famous Carmelite, who died last year, he greeted her after her long absence from Carmel with a huge and convincingly enthusiastic: "Goodness Gracious, how are you, Greeley?"

Now Mrs. Greeley lives in Southern California, where her son, Douglas Greeley, is assistant maintenance engineer for the highway district which includes Ventura, Los Angeles and Orange counties. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Greeley are expected to visit Carmel soon.

Greeley, as a boy, was one of the charter members of the Carmel Boys Club, and later was color bearer in the first Boy Scout troop.

Ross and Thelma Miller are having the time of their lives with the Kern Herald, their "baby", a daily newspaper which they are pioneering in Bakersfield.

The ex-Carmelites and Pine Cone publishers report that all is not only going well but that it's exciting, too. They both worked several years ago for the Bakersfield Californian, an old established paper, later decided that competition was the spice of life.

Their front pages are lively, new-sy, and they report that they go after stories. This is apparent in their headlines. Moreover, the inside and back pages carry a healthy lineage of advertising.

Well printed, the Kern Herald is proving itself. The Millers report also that subscriptions just roll in!

"Homer of Tenderloin" Praised by Dr. Blanks

"A man who can make the world laugh can never die," according to Dr. Anthony F. Blanks, who spoke before the Carmel Woman's Club on Monday afternoon, and such a man was William Sidney Porter, known to readers the world over as O. Henry. His publishers still receive letters written to him as a living person even though he died physically in 1910.

He was "a man's man and therefore a woman's hero," said Dr. Blanks, and was named by Hugh Walpole the "father of American literature."

O. Henry, declared Dr. Blanks, did not break on the world through the medium of the fanfare of publisher's press-agents but as a half whisper which arrested the attention of the reading public. Since that time the works of this "Y. M. C. A. Boccaccio" or "Homer of the Tenderloin", as he has been dubbed, have caused even William Lyon Phelps to name him among the great of literature.

O. Henry's field was the short story which is a form of literature particularly developed in America, beginning with Edgar Allan Poe. He saw life as it was lived and the masses in the raw and of such material did he weave his stories, said Dr. Blanks.

The speaker told of how William Sidney Porter was born in 1867 in Greensboro, North Carolina, a typical Southern town composed of four classes of humanity, the people of quality, the poor whites, the Negroes and the mean nigger. He was always a true son of the Old South.

His mother died when he was but three years old but left a deep impression on her son which can be traced through his writing. His father was a medical man in the small town who much preferred inventing things to the mundane life of a country doctor.

During his youth O. Henry was famous among his contemporaries for his endings to the stories, which they made up among one another. In those days when the cinema was unknown, the custom was for the young people of the town to gather about the fire and each in turn put on the blaze a faggot, and while it burned they told a section of a story which was developed by the next person while his faggot blazed. William Sidney Porter always was the last to put his stick on the fire and then while it fizzled he wound up in marvelous ways the fantastic tales the others had invented.

He went to Texas when he was 18 and became a ranger on the plains, herding sheep. His favorite book was Webster's Dictionary which he absorbed and claimed to be "the most interesting book he had ever read except that it changed its subject too often." By this reading he built up a vocabulary which was unexcelled. He learned the use of language to the extent that some of the passages in his works are exceptional in the mere putting together of words in descriptive manner.

"But," continued Dr. Blanks, "he had too much sense to use this form of expression too often."

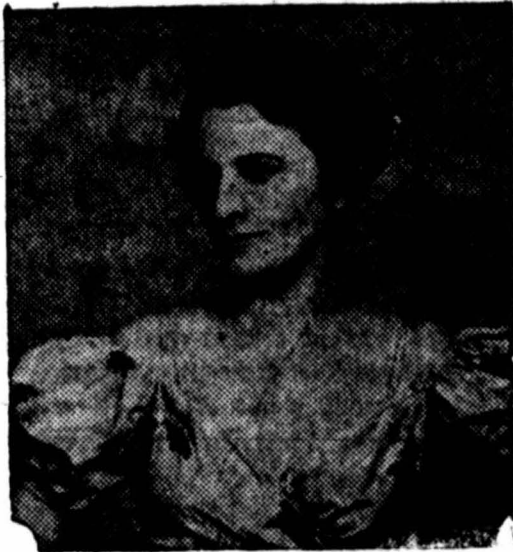

Finally young Porter settled in Austin, Tex., where he seemed to have held all the jobs open to a young man. He was among other things a clerk in a tobacco store, a drug store, payer and teller in a bank, the leader in the amateur dramatics of the town and sang in the choirs of all the churches in the town at one time or another.

And, of course, he fell in love! Dr. Blanks told how he eloped with his beloved of 17 summers to the next town, where they were married and then drove back in their horse and buggy to be welcomed with open arms by the bride's family.

Mrs. Porter, said Dr. Blanks, gave added encouragement to her husband's attempts in the literary profession but unfortunately never lived to see him become famous.

Next misfortune stalked the life of the man who wrote under the name of O. Henry. He was falsely accused of embezzling the funds of the First National Bank of Austin. The day of the trial was set and Porter was determined to go through with—to him—a sensitive man—a doubly-trying ordeal, but on the eve of the trial he bolted to Central America.

There he stayed until he heard that Mrs. Porter was dying of tuberculosis, when he returned to Austin to be at her deathbed and subsequently offered no defence at his trial and was sentenced to five years hard labor in the penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio. Due to good behavior, this was shortened to three years during which he was prison pharmacist and lived in dread that someone would tell his small daughter, Margaret, of his disgrace. No one did and years later, he himself, told her the whole story in its true light.

Then, as Dr. Blanks pointed out, came his later years of fame and of special note was the fact that he never wrote a story that was not bought, paid for and published. He had a contract which compelled him to turn out a short story every week for a year at $50 a story and the second year the same amount of material, but at double the price. No other writer, according to Blanks, has turned out so much first class literature at such a rate.

In conclusion, Dr. Blanks pointed out that O. Henry wrote for all people and then proceeded to prove that it was true by reading to the members O. Henry's "Handbook of Hymn" and keeping them in constant merriment.

Mrs. J. E. Abernethy presided at the meeting and Mrs. E. A. Fraser, program chairman, introduced the speaker as one of our community in that he has recently spent his sabbatical year here and will eventually live here on his retirement from the University of California where he is assistant professor of public speaking.—M. Robert Virovai Violin Recital Here Feb. 24th

By DORA HAGEMEYER

Perhaps the most exciting event of the Carmel Music Society's current winter series will be the forthcoming concert of the young violinist, Robert Virovai, on Saturday, Feb. 24.

Virovai is the most eagerly discussed musician in the news today. Eighteen years of age, he is just at that place in a musician's career when his audiences are thrilled with the unexpected demonstrations of unfolding genius.

When promise is combined with the perfection of any stage of growth, the two elements are irresistible. Many of the great artists have given their most moving performances at such a time. After the peak of a career is reached or passed, a certain freshness too often dies away.

Virovai—already the public is beginning to drop his first name—was born in 1921 in Daruvar, an ancient Serbian spa in the mountains that now separate Yugoslavia from Hungary.

He made his debut in this country with the New York Philharmonic in 1938 and astounded his audience with the fire and brilliancy of his playing.

The Carmel Music Society's box office will be open after Feb. 15.

Virovai will be heard with the New York Philharmonic orchestra on Sunday at 12 noon over the Columbia network, Station KSFO.

GARBO, DOUGLAS IN "NINOTCHKA"

Greta Garbo and Melvyn Douglas come to the Carmel Theater screen Sunday to Tuesday in "Ninotchka", a gay, witty, vivacious comedy, which gives the Swedish star her first role in several years and twice as many lines as in any other previous role.

The picture is laid in Paris, Russia and Constantinople. For Garbo it is her 23rd picture, and the second in which Douglas plays opposite her. They were together previously in "As You Desire Me".

The old professor himself, Kay

Kyser, and Adolphe Menjou come with "That's Right You're Wrong", tonight and tomorrow, with May Robson, Lucille Ball, Dennis O'Keefe, Edward Everett Horton, Roscoe Karns and Moroni Olsen.

It features Kay Kyser's band and "The College of Musical Knowledge", popular radio feature.

THE SCHOONER YANKEE SAILS WESTWARD.....by Babette De Moe

"On the night watch, we had a beautiful phosphorescent wake. If it had been a little more brilliant, we would have been able to read by it."

Earl De Moe, son of Mrs. E. C. Poklen of Carmel, recently sent another fascinating account of his globe voyage on the 90-foot schooner, Yankee, westward bound to the Galapagos Islands and beyond. Sailing are Capt. Irving Johnson, "Exy", his wife, their two small children, 12 college boys, and Fritz, the cook and the only paid hand on board.

While in Balboa, in the Panama Canal Zone, Earl and the mates had a busy time with so many opportunities offered them. He wrote: "When the rain comes down here, it really rains. We all went out to a beach that is reserved for the army, and had a good swim. The water is the most buoyant I have ever been in. The most interesting part of the beach was the shark net that was stretched parallel to it. Only a couple of days before, a shark had managed to get in under the net and had to be blasted out with dynamite.

"We were all busy the next morning stowing different provisions away. I didn't like to leave Panama, because we all had such a lot of fun there."

Earl continued relating the passing of a school of porpoises. "They came right up under the bow of the boat and played around, giving us all a fine view of them. They certainly can swim. We've seen them jump at least 12 feet into the air.

When King Neptune's Day arrived, the initiation of the neophytes on crossing the equator caused much excitement. After pleading guilty to the charge of not getting seasick, Earl had to squeeze through a coat hanger. "After that, I had a portion of my hair cut off, and what remained of it was filled with gum! I had a fellow clip it as short as he could."

After many unfortunate, but humorous proceedings, the mates had to push blocks with their noses. "The last one got a couple of swats with a wet towel." Then they were covered with a lather of flour and salt water, and had to crawl through a tube filled with salt water, "most difficult to breathe in."

"My head feels rather sunburned. In fact, when I brush my hand over the bristles, my scalp really tingles. I am wearing a handkerchief over it to keep it from getting worse.

"For several days we have had a lone shark, which we have named Sheldon, following us. Several times a day we see his fin and part of his tail gliding alongside the boat.

Further accounts reported wonderful hunting and fishing at the Galapagos, as well as a "marvelous two-hour plane ride over the Andes."

Earl concluded by saying, "Another thing that you don't have in the States is the display of stars. It seems queer to look into a sky that you have never seen before. We lost the big dipper a long time ago."

READER'S REACTION

Editor, Carmel Pine Cone:

As you know, Governor Olson has convened the legislature to meet Monday, Jan. 29, first place on the agenda being taken by appropriations for relief and pensions. I have sent the Governor (also our Senator and Assemblyman) a letter of which the following is a copy.—

Ernest J. Atter.

Carmel, Calif.,
Jan. 26, 1940.

The Honorable Culbert L. Olson,
Governor of California, Sacramento.
Dear Governor Olson:

I am writing to call attention to the fact, which seems to have escaped notice, that the money to pay California State expenses for relief, pensions, etc., really need not be got through taxation and debt.

The money or financial credit (whether received by the State as taxes or as borrowings) with which State expenses are now paid originally comes into existence, as is attested by the highest orthodox authorities, as a creation by the banks. Ninety-nine per cent of all money used is check-money.

"Banks lend by creating credit (money); they create the means of payment out of nothing. (Encyclopedia Britannica Vol. 15 "Money").

Because of this power, too, the Commonwealth Bank can increase the reserves of the trading banks; for example, it can buy securities and other property, it can lend to the governments or to others in a variety of ways, AND IT CAN EVEN MAKE MONEY AVAILABLE TO GOVERNMENTS AND OTHERS FREE OF CHARGE." (Report of the Royal Commission to enquire into the monetary and banking system at present operating in Australia, section 504, page 196, general section "Creation of Credit").

At present, as is well known, the banks issue this money or financial credit (which they create costlessly out of nothing) only as debt to be repaid to the banks. But it does not belong to the banks, it belongs to all the individuals collectively comprising the city, county or state, vide the fact that it buys their goods and services in the market place just as does other undetected counterfeit money. It is the financial reflection of the real credit of all the individuals collectively—of their ability to deliver wanted results.

Thus banks steal on the most colossal scale.

Now it is clear that the whole of the financial credit (money) necessary for relief, pensions, etc., could be credited, not charged, to the State on the books of the banks.

State expenses could be paid, without hardship to anyone, from debt-free issues of financial credit issued to the State (as credits not debts) by the present monopolists of the creation of financial credit (money) the banks.

Each and all of us have a tremendous personal responsibility in this most important matter for if the Dictatorship of Finance which in fact rules us is not exposed and dethroned it will certainly subvert the democratic constitution of our State.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) ERNEST J. ATTER.

It's the Early Bird that gets the Fun

The model illustrated is the BUICK SUPER model 51 four-door touring sedan $1109 delivered at Flint, Mich. White sidewall tires additional.*

ONE of these days the itch is going to hit you to get out and get in on the fun a Buick can be in the spring-time.

You're going to feel an irrepressible yen to touch off that husky, sweet-singing Dynaflex power plant and swing out in gentle coil-spring comfort to take in the fresh spring landscape.

Maybe, like others we know of, you've even got the model picked out, and are just "waiting a few weeks" to do something definite about it.

But may we emphasize, in purely friendly interest, that a lot of other people probably have the same idea.

And that when they start buying in droves—as they do every year about the 1st of March—even Buick's big factory has trouble keeping up with them.

Help Promote Safety—Dim Your Lights When Passing

Of course, we're doing all we can to be ready for everyone.

But you can get only so many cars in a warehouse.

And a full warehouse can empty awfully fast.

And what with everybody wanting Buicks this season, we can't say how long we can promise the delivery we can give now.

So why not play the early bird this year? Why not get the jump on your neighbor and be driving your Buick while he's still talking about getting his?

You've nothing to lose, a lot of fun to gain—and you'll find the address of your Buick dealer in the phone book.

Not a six but an EIGHT for $895 and up delivered at Flint, Mich. *Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories — extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

By AMOS BARRETT

For a blanket phrase, none suits the current special session of the State Legislature as well as "Something Old, Something New, Something Borrowed, Something Blue" or phew!

The "something old" is the familiar roundelays on relief. Somewhere between the extreme of almost a $100,000,000 on one hand and the $31,000,000 economy program lies the amount most observers believe adequate for 350,000 relievers, with or without county administration.

Olson forces were quick to point out that if the economy figure were appropriated, it would mean a sharp rise in local taxes, due to the need for supporting on county indigent rolls a goodly number who are now on state dole.

* * * * *

The county supervisors were quick to realize this threat and quickly started a backfire which had solons melting rapidly from their rigid economy stand.

The move for a legislative recess was devised as a face saver in this embarrassing situation—with enough appropriated in the meantime to support relievers in the style to which they are accustomed.

Strategist for the anti-administration coalition have felt that one loophole exists. This would come about through legal re-definition of indigents. At present the counties are obliged to accept as indigents most everyone the SRA rejects.

* * * * *

The "something new" was the Kenny canard, known as the "little Hatch amendment" and pharsed after congressional legislation. The State Senate hemmed and hawed and spoke of Americanism and constitutional rights in taking political privileges away from relief recipients—but it passed the restrictive rider.

* * * * *

"Something borrowed" strikes the State Treasury. Traditionally opposed to new taxes in an election year, the Legislators are in a squeeze over the costs of government which are mounting in an alarming degree—particularly because of relief.

Informed insiders are of the opinion that new taxes will be a disagreeable necessity, and that no economy slashes will be enough to overcome the topheavy deficit. At the same time, the $50,000,000 revenue program of Olson was frost bitten from the start of the special session.

* * * * *

Something Phew: The yarn $800 was expended by the Governor on a tablecloth for the executive mansion. There's been many an extra employe placed on the State rolls, and, undoubtedly, a few other points of criticism which have been exploited, but this rumor was groundless. Official denial by Richard Olson, the Governor's son and secretary, served only to arouse doubts but the foundation was a shaky as the story circulated against a late governor (Stephens) who was supposed to eat his breakfast food off a gold plate while the people starved.

"This Man's News" Is Playhouse Film

At the Playhouse, formerly the Filmarte, "This Man Is News" still holds the screen. Hailed as the British "Thin Man", it has proved a prime favorite. Humorous and thrilling by turns, and starring the lovely English star, Valerie Hobson, it will finish tomorrow afternoon and evening, not to be seen again until its revival next summer.

Sunday matinee will bring "Young Mr. Lincoln", starring Henry Fonda and the late Alice Brady. It will play Sunday and Monday only. This is a fascinating picture dealing with a colorful and adventurous phase of Lincoln's life, his early years in Salem, Ill. Many famous episodes are depicted, among them the ten-

Benefit Variety Show Tonight Aids Firemen

Bill as "hot" entertainment, the benefit variety show to be given by local actors, dancers and musicians for the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department at 8:30 this evening at the Fire House promises to provide a refreshing program.

The proceeds will go to pay memberships of local firemen in the California State Firemen's Association, the Tri-County Association of Fire Departments, subscriptions to educational magazines and for entertainment of visiting firemen and expenses of delegates to state and county fire conventions.

"We're not asking for donations", as one fireman put it. "We are promising more than 50 cents worth of entertainment."

The fire department in which there are 25 volunteer firemen, 14 of whom hold Red Cross first aid certificates, answered 140 calls in 1939, 38 of which were fire alarms, 119 service calls, and 83 ambulance calls. An average of 20 firemen answered each alarm. There was a fire loss per capita of 13/100th cents per capita in Carmel in 1939, amounting to only 6/100th per $100,000 worth of burnable property. The total fire loss was $410, a fine record for efficiency and prevention.

The program announced yesterday includes a group of tumblers, Martin Artellan and Louis Machado and their concertinas, the Hildebrand Sister act, dancers, two skits directed by Chick McCarthy, and songs.

Byington Ford, Lloyd Weer, Spud Grey and Richard Masten are the actors in "If Men Played Cards Like Women" and Betty Bryant, Beverly Tait and Gray are in "Maid Service".

Dancers include Madelaine McDonough, in a solo; and the Cascares dancers, June Andrews, Ernest Bixler, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Krumholtz, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Watson with Gray as caller. They are directed by Miriam Watson. Eddie George will do a solo and Marja Lee Davis, Bob Bratt and Gray will sing "I Want a Cottage in Old Carmel", Masten-Ford-Pierce number.

Earl Williams with his tap dance, Darwin Teacy, Ronald Jordan, Lloyd Trine, George Fitzsimmons, Harold Lee and Roland Scheffler, dance, and Evelyn Hildebrand at the piano, Susie Ellen Duvtl at the piano, Gray as M. C., Albert Lockwood with his harmonica and the volunteer firemen with their salvage demonstration will complete the ensemble.

der romance with Ann Rutledge, her untimely death, the fateful meeting with Mary Todd, and the thrilling "moonlight murder" trial.

It is expected that Monday night will bring out in force to the Lincoln film the American Legion Auxiliary of Carmel, whose welfare fund every Monday performance at the Playhouse is dedicated.

Tuesday night marks the opening of the breathless "Ski Chase", a film which has been crowding metropolitan theaters this winter. It was produced in the Austrian Tyrol, starring Hannes Schneider, one of the greatest ski experts in the world, as well as an astonishingly good actor. With him in an excellent comedy role is Leni Riefenstahl. "The Ski Chase" is pure fun throughout.

Thursday brings an often-requested revival of a musical that seemingly will never grow old, "One Night of Love", with the lovely voice of Grace Moore and Tullio Carminati and a gay romantic story.

Don Blanding's All Right! Death Rumor 'Premature'

One can scarcely take as serious a rumor emanating from the frosty wilds of Wisconsin that one Don Blanding of Carmel and Hawaii is dead!!

Especially with all the evidence in hand that Blanding is very much alive, in the pink from dining on a certain brand of patented bread, and staging a huge, romantic show in Honolulu—as the T. H. newspapers report.

The rumor about Don's demise came in a letter as follows. "I would appreciate information regarding Don Blanding's whereabouts at this time. There has been a rumor around lately that he died in Hawaii a few weeks ago, resulting from diet."

The letter is from "a friend and admirer of Mr. Blanding and his books." The gentleman who wrote resides in Wauwatosa, so we'll have to write him by return mail to the effect that Mr. Blanding is alive and kicking and will soon be in Carmel again to prove it. In fact, Blanding is expected on the mid-February Clipper.

A huge clipping from a Honolulu paper shows Blanding in swimming trunks, very brown from exposure to the southern sunlight—after Carmel's drenching fogs—with a fair companion that would make any man feel young—as young as Blanding looks!

In the advertisement, Blanding looks as fit as a fiddle, a rather large fiddle, and as if Hawaii's theatrical activities had removed about 50 pounds, which we understand is just about the case.

"It's easier to take off than to KEEP OFF," says Don Blanding who just reduced 36 pounds—that's what the advertisement reads. The balance of the testimonial relates how Roman Meal bread is just the thing, and it's signed with the familiar Blanding's Aloha with the little bird sitting on the end of the pen stroke.

Yes, and the illustration includes the deftly held cigarette holder, and no doubt the swimming trunks are Blanding blue.

The big thing in Blanding's life in the last few weeks, however, has not been Roman Meal bread, but "A Night to Remember" for the Outdoor Circle, the organization which banned forever billboards from Hawaii. (Planning boards please note!). The big Blanding show, incidentally, was staged Feb. 1, 2 and 3, after which Blanding took a rest before leaving the Islands.

Added evidence that Blanding is still with us came over the ether last Saturday when he was wafted over the air from Mutual Don Lee radio stations.

Carmel Unified School Board Chairman Speaks

(The following is from the address of Peter Mawdsley, chairman of the Carmel Unified School Board, speaking before those who attended the open meeting at Sunset school library last Friday evening, on the subject of the building of the Carmel high school.)

As you know, we opened bids yesterday for those portions of the school and find that we will be able to let a contract for their construction. This will require the expenditure of all our available funds except for a small contingency reserve.

The situation now confronting the board is the necessity of providing for the completion of the high school plant. The State Department, in concurring in our separation from Monterey, did so on the condition that we would provide equivalent accommodation and facilities. This involves an additional building program (which was included in our campaign proposals) for the provision of gymnasium, shop and cafeteria, not included in the present bids.

It was the feeling of the people, throughout the campaign, that we should try to avail ourselves of government help if possible, but, failing that, to go ahead and complete the plant. Dr. Almack's report, and its general acceptance by the community, definitely implied this. Moreover, none of us, I am sure, would question the need for completing the plant and thus providing complete and adequate educational facilities. The only limitation we would impose would be the tax limit set, upon which the people, in good faith, voted the high school.

This brings us then to the necessity of another bond issue and its amount and ultimate tax cost. In order to present this question to you we have prepared a bond tax table for retiring the 1939 issue of $165,000. It starts with a tax of 14c for the current year, requires 13c next year, and ends in 20 years' time on an estimated tax of 7c, representing an average of 9½c, throughout the twenty years.

In line with the campaign estimate of a 20c tax for the entire high school plant, this would allow an average additional tax of 10½c for a further bond issue. This remainder would be more than sufficient to carry the additional bond issue needed to complete the school.

A second table has been prepared on a graduated tax rate up to the total combined bond tax of 20c for the two issues. In the first year, i. e., the next ensuing fiscal year, the added rate would be 7c, the following year 8c, and so on, always keeping to the total of 20c for these two bond issues together. This second table shows that the graduated tax I have mentioned would completely retire an additional bond issue of $135,000 in 15 years. It will be apparent, therefore, that if the 20-year spread were used, without considering any further future needs, the average tax for the combined bond issues would drop below 20c. It would in fact be only 17c.

Carrying the table on to the end of the 20 years, indicates the margin available within that 20-cent tax limit to cover later issues for enlargement and expansion programs that will be inevitable with growth of population.

We recognize the future needs and take account in our calculations of their effect on the bond tax. By setting up a hypothetical issue in another ten years' time of $85,000 and carrying that additional issue on the retirement table after 1950, we find that, still keeping to the 20c limit, we could, at the end of 20 years from now have all three issues paid off, except for $17,000. By that time, of course, there would probably be new needs for expansion, but, except for the $17,000 noted, they would be unhampered by unpaid prior obligations.

On this matter of bond tax rates it should be clearly understood that the 20c tax here referred to, does not absorb our three earlier bond obligations. These, however, together with the remaining years under the Monterey district bonds, are fast running out. Grammar School bonds issued in 1929, expire in the fiscal year 1942-3; those issued in 1925 and 1931, both run out in 1946. We firmly believe that the inauguration of the new junior-senior high school will relieve us of grammar school expansions for years to come, and that is a saving of taxes which should not be overlooked. The Monterey bonds are almost through. This year we are paying 9c, next year 2c, and the following, and last, year, 1c. So, by 1946 all our old bonds will have been paid off, and only the new school bonds will remain. In this connection, it is interesting to note, too, that in the city of Carmel all existing bonded indebtedness will have been paid off by 1948. There are two fire department bond issues under retirement, one of which expires in 1945.

In this survey of bond taxes, the board has taken account of the entire tax situation, and so far as the school taxes are concerned, finds them to be satisfactory. We are saved from the involvement for another 20 years in new taxes under the Monterey Union district building plan which would have imposed a heavier tax burden than is indicated for our own district. We are saved, too, from new Grammar School bond taxes. We are operating at a lower high school rate than we have been paying at Monterey, whose lowest rate was 29c against our rate this year of 25c. With the new 1939 bonds at 14c, our total tax is 39c. The campaign estimate was 48c, leaving a clear margin for the proposed additional bond issue. Since our table was made up, it has been possible to estimate more accurately the additional amount needed. Though it has not been finally set, our tentative figure is $150,000. This still comes well under the 20c tax cost, which has been stipulated. It would, in fact, run out in 16½ years and give a combined bond tax for the two issues of only 18c. In every way the campaign promises are being kept.

Reverting for a moment to the origin of the whole question, we remind ourselves of its cause: the proposals of the Monterey board for expansion to meet enrollment increases; their inability to expand on the present campus; the inevitable increase in cost and taxes; the belief, so clearly demonstrated, that Carmel could have its own high school at less cost; the recognition of advantages that would accrue from such a community high school (such as keeping the students in their own locality, enlarging the scope of student activities and enabling more children to participate in those activities), release from the huge burden of school transportation costs; the bringing of new residents to the community; and, finally, combining in one local self-government, the control, direction, and management of our entire school system.

The strong and positive response of this community and its oft expressed determination to carry through, leaves no doubt in our minds as to the will of the people. There never before has been such a unanimity of community determination as was shown throughout the campaign under the able and vigorous direction of Mr. Van Riper. Remembering the community considerations involved, and our whole school economy and welfare of the future, we are confident that the people will provide the means to carry through to fulfillment.

Mrs. Butterfield to Read "Lost Pleiad" at Pine Inn Thursday

The first of a series of readings will be given next Thursday evening at Pine Inn by Mrs. Genevieve Butterfield, who will read "The Lost Pleiad", based on the Greek myth. The reading will be at 8:30, with dinner beforehand at 8:30.

Mrs. Butterfield, a well known Carmelite, is a graduate of the Minneapolis School of Oratory, and was also a student at the Leland Powers School of the Spoken Word at Boston, Mass., and of Elizabeth Mack of New York and Paris. She is being sponsored by Miss Florence Harper.

According to the Greek myth, a Pleiad came to earth to marry a mortal. Merope, the youngest of the Pleiades, commanded by Zeus to shine as the well known constellation, fell in love with Sisyphus, founding king of Corinth. It was her grandson, Bellerophon, who captured Pegasus, winged horse of the muses, thereby winning for earthly people the service of poetry. The play is a fantasy based on this story.

PACIFIC GROVE SCOUTS CAPTURE A STATE "FIRST"

The Pacific Grove Boy Scout Troop No. 50 holds a unique record—as first in California to qualify 100 per cent for American Red Cross first aid certificates. The troop, composed of 27 boys under Scout Master James A. Murphy, passed examinations after the 15-lesson course to be the first complete troop to win this honor in the State. Mrs. M. Whitman and J. Miller of Monterey instructed.

Mexico in Color Motion Pictures to be Screened

An unique color motion picture of Mexico is promised for tomorrow evening at Pine Inn where Miss Elsie Cross will show her film with Miss Florence Dean assisting as commentator.

Mexico awaits the American visitor as a convenient and different country. From rugged highlands to palm-studded shores, it has a wide range of scenery of the most dramatic sort. Its colorful people from peons to aristocrats of old-world dignity, its colorful costumes, and its vast resources as a country beautiful are most appealing.

The motion picture will be shown at 8:15, while dinner preceding the motion picture will be served at Pine Inn at 6:03.

NOW WE'RE ALL AGREED

The Carmel Unified School Board has a mandate from the people and is happy to act thereon. Thus the public meeting last Friday evening, attended by a thoroughly representative although none-too-large group of Carmelites, proved of practical value.

The school board has now one course open and that is to start building at once in order to give the public something concrete after nearly two years of hoping and planning. After that, as stated by one representative citizen who was, incidentally, one of the prime-movers for a Carmel high school, "the rest will come later."

What is needed is essentially what the school board is now contracting for, classroom and administration buildings, four of them, so located on the 22-acre Hatton Ranch site that the other buildings to be built later can "grow" around them. The board has barely enough ready cash to complete these first essentials but somehow it will do its utmost to have the indispensable portions of a school ready for the fall term of this year.

Water mains, sewer lines and roadways are to be provided for as well as walks between buildings.

The proposal to consider another bond election has been wisely put aside until some later date. The board's position was ably presented in the portion of Mr. Mawdsley's statement contained elsewhere in today's Pine Cone. The discussion which followed cleared up the course of action for the board and ahead lies, we hope, another bit of straight sailing.

That Carmel voters would not stand another bond election at this time was stated and there is a great deal to support this contention aside from the feeling we all have in our bones.

Of course, there is need for cafeteria, shop, gymnasium, swimming pool, playing fields, but these things can come later. And there is again the hope that a PWA grant may be forthcoming.—Mr. Ernest Bixler, postmaster, suggested that $500,000,000 in WPA grants looms—to say nothing of possible WPA assistance. The board expressed distinct hope for the latter. Meanwhile, however, the board is acting as if WPA and PWA are merely possibilities and not to be more than hoped for. The board is squared away for actual construction with what money is in hand of the $165,000 voted and out of which $31,000 was spent for the site.

It was exceedingly pleasing to note at the public meeting how willing the board was to go along with informal public sentiment in the interest of harmony and also how little heckling there was from sections that within a year have expressed themselves strongly on the question. It was also pleasing to note how friendly all quarters now feel toward the board; and that such an important figure in the whole proceedings that went into getting out of the Monterey Union High School District as Mr. Van Riper appears to be entirely in sympathy with the board and ready once again to fling himself wholeheartedly into anything the board may wish to do—so long as it is entirely reasonable and practical. It is always an unhappy day for Carmel when its best minds and best workers fail to see eye-to-eye in the carrying out of an important project. We are duly thankful that this is no longer the case.

POETRY CONTEST

The editors of The Pine Cone's poetry column are awarding a prize of $25 for the best poem to be printed in The Pine Cone before May 1, 1940. Poems must not exceed 20 lines in length; no manuscripts will be returned; there is no limit to the number of poems which may be submitted. No previously published works may be entered in the contest.

WILD CURRANT

*Wild Currant is out!
Now Caution is in retreat,
Calling her harrowing hand-maids off—
Dull Prudence and pale Care
And all the blighting troupe—
There is a magic in this wooded scent
They cannot bear!
Those kin to wild things only
Dare invite the secret spell
And, briefly mad, take Freedom's hand
And dance with Beauty
When the Wild Currant blows!*

—OLGA MARIE FLOHR.

ENTREATY

*From above these forests of steel with leaves of light,
I saw the chipped winds in the granite canyons,
And the white stir of paper at curb's edge, thinking:
There is a valley, Love, where wind leans at the breast;
Where trees weave lakes of night. There is a valley,
Love. The clod-caught thud of fallen fruits
Is heard, the counting leaves, and through the curve
In earth, the dim quicksilvered movement of a creek.
Walk with me
When the sky is green, the stars horizon-slid.
A slow sun cusps the world's rim, in the cool Remembered cities of our sleep.*

—AMELIA SNYDER MCINTYRE.

THE LILAC HEDGE

"Lovely, too lovely!" you whispered in my dream and so it was, too lovely to remain, as the lush lilacs brimmed with evening rain.

*In the morning sun we bravely said,
"Love will live on and follow us to death."*

*Oh heart, you wasted so much breath.
Bravely, I said. Of course we had need who stood in the glare of day and made our pledge, not hearing the noise of death in the lilac hedge.*

—JEANNE DELAMARTER from "Seven Seas"

MY LADY OF THE LILACS

*When you and I and these
The makers of our shadows and our lights,
Have blended into greyness and greyness into night,
I see a spray of lilacs that's fashioned of the fires
We kindled in the morning of our love.*

*I see a spray of lilacs,
Immortal in the night;
And I hear the deathless yearning
In a song that now goes singing
Down the trackless, nameless reaches of our souls.*

—CHARLES FRISBIE.

LIQUOR LICENSES AGAIN

It's really up to the State Board of Equalization, this distributing of licenses, but it should be pointed out that a community like Pacific Grove, through almost 100 per cent unanimity, can control its dryness.

There is a large section of this community which sincerely feels that liquor has no place in Carmel and that it can only do Carmel harm. There are others who depend upon its sale for their living. Also there is to be considered the danger of too many places selling liquor, making it impossible for any to do so profitably.

The application of a new firm to sell beer and wine at a stand on Dolores street and the one to sell beer, wine and liquors at the Phillips-Gates hotel on the Plaza bring up this question again. It is the well known policy not to grant any new licenses, but there's a hitch to this statement as licenses already issued can be bought and sold and transferred to new locations. So that's the situation and that's that.

As for a recent editorial in this column, we have to eat our words, because the new hotel is definitely interested in a liquor license, although there is no indication that the proprietors will operate under such a license themselves. Perhaps it would be a good thing, however, if they did, because as people who claim to have the best interests of Carmel at heart, they would probably run things so that there would be no complaint on that score. Both Dr. Gates and Mr. Phillips have been associated with Carmel long enough to understand how Carmelites feel about their town and what is good for it, and what is good for Carmel is good for every business person in Carmel.

MORE STOP SIGNS?

Yes, stop signs again! No one has any wish to clutter up Carmel streets with more stop signs unless they are necessary. Yet the effect of a few stop signs, at places where many drivers might easily object to having them placed, has been not only to lower but virtually to eliminate accidents at the corners in question.

Now comes an appeal for more signs on Mission street. Already after long delayed stop signs have been placed at Mission and Eighth, where school children must cross. There is yet an unguarded corner near the school, and this is the one nearest the lower grades. It is the corner of Mission and Tenth, a blind corner. While there is virtually no traffic across Mission at this point, there is the extra hazard of a bottleneck on Mission just south of Eighth, with obscured vision. In spite of all these hazards, there is a tendency for trucks and delivery cars to speed on Mission and residents near that corner repeatedly point out the danger.

So, an urgent request for attention to this question is forwarded to the authorities, a strong second to the request already made to the city council. And, this time, may the red tape be cut as short as possible.

DEAN JENNINGS TELLS HEADLINE HEADLIGHTS IN HIS "LEG MAN"

LEG MAN. Dean S. Jennings. George Palmer Putnam, Inc., Hollywood. $2.50.

A future Carmelite and an occasional visitor is Dean S. Jennings, who, still a young man, has brought forth his reminiscences of his career as a newspaperman in San Francisco and Paris. Like Stanley Walker's "City Editor" and "Mrs. Astor's Horse", Jennings has hit on something that appeals to the popular fancy with "Leg Man".

Essentially a story-teller, Jennings plies his trade ably in "Leg Man" with many an intimate anecdote of his contacts with the great or famous—"You must meet such interesting people, Mr. Jennings!" He lives up to the popular conception of how exciting a newsman's life is and many the interesting people who fringe it. Yet Jennings never for a moment falls into the pitfalls of the ex-Duchess or retired-Opera Singer who merely tells who she's met and not what it meant to meet her.

Jennings, by the way, was the young man who wrote "The Man Who Killed Hitler" which achieved such Putnamesque publicity last year. That is, Jennings and an emigre German woman wrote the book from her knowledge and with Jennings deft pen. Jennings was on hand at the time Putnam was more or less kidnapped in Southern California—in fact he just left his Carmel cottage in time to be on the scene for the kidnapping. But there is no mere coincidence in that, because newspapermen are great ones for hunches and being on the right spot at the right time, or they wouldn't get the stories they do.

Jennings was in many right spots at the right time. He was in Paris when Lindbergh arrived on his famous flight—in the right spot but a split-second late. He interviewed many of the famous "screwballs" of the past decade and found them interesting or humdrum as the case might be. Assiduously he kept his files of clippings and news stories that never felt the press and printer's ink, and his very valuable card index.

With all the craft of modern journalism, Jennings has produced a highly readable, entertaining, and fast flowing minor epic of the life of one newspaperman. At times it's highly humorous, other times dips into the morbid, but always Jennings takes a healthy view of the situation, notes for his readers just what they'd like to know about the hanging or the corpse, down to some slight detail that the newspapers always leave unsaid and—well, "Leg Man's" a swell book.

Jennings thanks for assistance Doris Drury, among others, who used to slave in the Del Monte Press Bureau and was known to many in Carmel. Miss Drury helped with the typing and in research.

There are some bits in this book that will make Sheriff Carl Abbott's hair curl and there is reference to Robinson Jeffers and Don Blanding, two of our best known Carmelites.

EARTH'S GREEN MANTLE. Sydney Mangham. The Macmillan Company. New York. $3.50.

This volume of interest to California gardeners and students of the wildflowers and forests is by an Englishman who has made a thorough study of vegetation around the world. In fact the illustrations in the book take one not only all around the world, but right back home to Carmel, California!

This is in part due to the assistance given Dr. Mangham by his friend, Dr. Francis E. Lloyd of Carmel, who loaned him photographs taken in South Africa, Australia, California and Carmel. Some are also contributed by Dr. R. D. Gibbs who was an occasional visitor in Carmel several years ago while engaged in research at the rubber plantation near Salinas.

Earth's Green Mantle gets a first on the Scientific Book Club's "highly recommended" list. Specifically, it outlines the story of "man's persistent efforts to understand and utilize the almost illimitable wealth of plant life. An excellent, richly informative survey of plant science for the layman."

BERTA METZGER AIDS UNIQUE VOLUME OF CHINESE FOLK VERSE

SONGS OF CHINESE CHILDREN. Maryette Hawley Lum. Suttonhouse Publishers, Inc. New York.

Miss Lum was a Carmel visitor last summer, coming here to work with Miss Berta Metzger, now a Carmelite, but for many years a resident of the Orient. Miss Metzger is the translator of several of the verses in this book, being a student of Chinese and one who learned the songs and folk tales of China at first hand. Some of the poems are also her originals in the Chinese spirit.

In part Miss Lum helps to explain the difference between these children's rhymes in Chinese and in English: "When spoken in Chinese they have a rhythm of their own, but no definite tune. Unfortunately when put into English they lose their Chinese inflection, or 'sing-song' since English words have no exact tunes, and one feels the lack of a tune. I have therefore made tunes for a few of these rhymes. . . . Most of the melodies which I have made are based on themes from Chinese songs, and the accompaniments are kept as nearly within the limits of the Chinese scale tones as possible."

This book was first printed in China in 1936 and the Chinese characters are here repeated. The illustrations by Lin Yu Ts'ang are whimsically Chinese, rather simple than stylized.

Next Wednesday is St. Valentine's Day when Cupid is supposed to roam the world with his bow and arrow and he may be at the Carmel Art Association Costume Party on that evening. Members received their invitations this week and were told that they need not dress up to join the fun planned at the galleries, but that they should attend as much entertainment is to be had on this occasion. Ruth Austin and her dance pupils will give a program portraying periods of the dance with something extra special in the way of music written for the occasion by Mary Ingels and played by her and by Susie Ellen Duval. There will also be dancing for everyone, a quiet room for those who want to play cards, and at least one snug corner should those chess fans, Paul Whitman, Paul Dougherty and Clay Otto decide to hold an all night session with the queens and knights and bishops. Besides this a very special portion is being mixed for the punch bowl and a committee has arranged for Mrs. Caroline Pickitt of Peter Pan Lodge to provide some delectable food. Everything will be very informal at the first party of this sort ever given by the Carmel Art Association when the artists and the associate members of the group will meet for the first time as a whole for the simple purpose of having a good time . . . and . . . in case you aren't a member of the association and really don't want to miss all the merriment . . . why two dollars will make you an associate member and you can dig in the old trunk in the attic for something to wear, or just go as you are, and have a good time. But, remember, it's a members-only party!

They will be accompanied by their Girl Scout leaders, Mrs. Talbert Josselyn and Mrs. C. J. Ryland. The Legion Auxiliary contributes to the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts as well as to their welfare program.

Miss Frances Topping, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Topping of Carmel Point, was married on Thursday morning of last week in Yuma, Ariz., to Kenneth Brooks of Pomona. The bride is a graduate of Douglas School and was in her freshman year at Pomona College. Her husband is a member of an old Pomona family and is a partner in the flying school and airport in the southern town and also is flying instructor at the college. Following the meeting tea will be served under the chairmanship of Mrs. Flo Holm.

Linda Rooke-Ley Now Interior Decoration Manager at Holman's

Linda Rooke-Ley of Carmel has a new and very exciting job. She is the interior decorator for Holman's store in Pacific Grove and is going to redecorate their 20-odd model rooms in the store and buy for the interior decorations department.

All this entails a good deal of traveling about and for the next few weeks Carmel will see very little of Mrs. Rooke-Ley as she will be in San Francisco and Los Angeles purchasing materials both for the store and for the rooms, which she will do over.

Misses Ellen and Jessie Joan Brown were guests of Miss Gussie Meyers on Thursday of last week when they went to San Francisco to attend a "Bon Voyage" party on the Lurline given by Miss Etta Stackpole, who sailed for Honolulu for a six months' vacation. They also enjoyed greatly a performance of "Gone With the Wind."

LIBRARY HAS BIBLIOGRAPHY FOR CARMEL FORUM LECTURE

Although he writes that "unless Carmel is different . . . making a bibliography for an adult forum is about like making one for college students," Dr. William H. Poytress has nevertheless complied with a request of J. W. Getsinger, Carmel Forum director, and sent a list of books and magazine articles bearing on the lecture, "Germany Can't Win", scheduled for the Sunset auditorium on Feb. 27. As the one "must" on the list, Dr. Poytress places "From Nazi Sources", by Fritz Sternberg. The bibliography has been posted in the Harrison Memorial Library.

Rubinstein Consummate Artist With The Piano

By EMMMA EVANS

Soul satisfying! Amazing! Stunning!

Words are inadequate to express what one felt and heard Saturday night.

Many artists thrill us with their technical skill of swiftness, accuracy and power, but only a few combine these with the indefinable something called soul—the perfect understanding of life itself expressed through the music they play. Such a one was Artur Rubinstein.

His rendition of the Bach Busoni Toccata in C Major was magnificent. Here was all the richness of tone one hopes for but seldom hears in "piano" Bach. Likewise the lovely Chorale, Prelude and Fugue of Cesar Franck.

The Debussy numbers were thrilling in their impressionistic and descriptive flow of color.

Stunning was the interpretation of the rhythmic Slavic music of the three numbers from the Petrouchka suite by Stravinsky. These were arranged by the composer himself expressly for Rubinstein and the pianist electrified the audience with his marvelous playing of this group. The transcription is amazing!

Rubinstein not only interpreted them musically, and with incredible skill, but the richness of tone and color rivalled any orchestral rendition ever heard (and it sounded as if Mr. Rubinstein were having fun doing it!)

To the Chopin group the pianist brought not only brilliant interpretation, but an understanding of the composer's music that few artists achieve. The second Mazurka brought tears to this writer's eyes. Chopin's Mazurkas are more than Polish Peasant dances—they are the spirit of Poland itself and Chopin at his best!

Thank you, Mr. Artur Rubinstein and the Carmel Music Society for an evening rich with beauty, inspiration and thrills never to be forgotten.

Further Bond Issue Delayed; WPA Aid Urged

probably be a matter of a few days before soil will be broken for the Carmel high school—goal of ambition and ceaseless action since July, 1938.

An aggressive local campaign is promised with various clubs and organizations asked to write letters to Frank A. March, chief of the WPA projects control department, at Washington, D. C., urging him to favor the project. It is reported that Congressman Jack Z. Anderson has promised every aid and that Senator Sheridan Downey is being approached.

At Wednesday's council meeting, School Board Chairman Peter Mawdsley asked for fire protection for the high school by the city, the request meeting with general approval. Fire Commissioner Bernard Rowntree said no new equipment would be required. It was understood a contract for fire protection would greatly affect the insurance rate.

Republicans to Attend Lincoln Day Dinner in San Jose Monday

A feature of the second annual Lincoln Day dinner, sponsored by Republican organizations of the Eighth Congressional District in San Jose on Monday evening will be the radio address of Herbert Hoover from a similar dinner in Omaha, Neb. The dinner in San Jose will commence at 7 o'clock in the Scottish Rite Temple banquet hall. The address will commence at 6 o'clock, however.

The speaker of the evening will be Joseph Scott of Los Angeles, lawyer and national Republican figure, who nominated Hoover for the presidency in 1932. Reservations are being made to Wayne Hutchins, 323 Center road, San Jose.

Edward Kuster Plans Summer Theater School

Edward G. Kuster, whose summer school of the theater in the days of the Theater of the Golden Bough was known across the country, plans to revive his school this coming summer.

He asks his friends to make known the fact far and wide and to send inquiries to him at the Hollywood Athletic Club headquarters in Hollywood.

Kuster has been dividing his time between Carmel and Hollywood, where he has been for some time director of American plays for Max Reinhardt in Dr. Reinhardt's Workshop of the Theater.

He announces that he is lining up several outstanding coaches and instructors for the school which will open about July 1. He already has classes and dictation each Saturday in the Greenroom on Casanova street.
